

SCADA (supervisory control and data acquisition) generally refers to industrial control systems. Computer systems that monitor and control industrial, infrastructure or facility-based processes. We have many solutions to cope with various situations on a case by case basis. Typical configuration is described below:

